For as little as $27 per day, you can rent an effective steam cleaner to clean both carpets and furniture. Home Depot even provides industrial-strength cleaners for bigger jobs and larger spaces
If you'd rather buy your own carpet cleaner, you can shop new options at Home Depot starting at $130. When you rent a carpet cleaner once, you pay less than you would to buy one outright, and you also don't have a large appliance to store in your home. You'll still have to buy the cleaning solution, though, the same as you would if you owned the carpet cleaner. And if you clean your carpets more than a handful of times, it's more economical to own a carpet cleaner or even buying one. But one big perk of hiring a service is, of course, not having to do the (possibly grueling) work yourself—and professionals will know the best way to handle different types of carpets and get them thoroughly clean. Many cleaning services will also do the work of moving your furniture off the carpets beforehand, not to mention lugging the equipment in and out of your house or apartment. With all of the above in mind, we priced the options for a home with three fully carpeted rooms (with a maximum of 300 square feet each) and three large area rugs (8x10 feet each). That means a total of 1,140 square feet of carpet for theoretical homes in Kansas City, Mo., and New York City. We factored in a standard price for cleaning solution, too. If you use carpet cleaning solution from Resolve—a brand that's compatible with carpet cleaners from Rug Doctor, Bissell, and Hoover—you can clean up to 1,600 square feet per 60-ounce bottle. How to Rent a Carpet Cleaner from Home Depot The rental process at Home Depot is designed to be as simple and seamless as possible. Here's a step-by-step breakdown of what to expect: Reserve your machine - You can reserve a carpet cleaner online at homedepot.com/rental or by calling your local store's rental department. Enter your zip code to see real-time availability and pricing for the models at a store near you. Choose your preferred rental period and check out using a credit card. You'll get a confirmation email with your order details and pickup instructions. Pick up your machine - On your scheduled pickup date, head to the Home Depot rental center (usually located near the back of the store) with your ID and credit card. A rental associate will help you fill out the paperwork, go over the operation and safety instructions, and load the machine into your vehicle. You'll also pay the rental fee and a refundable security deposit (typically $50-100) at this time. Clean your carpets - Take the carpet cleaner home and use it according to the manufacturer's guidelines. Be sure to vacuum thoroughly before deep cleaning, pre-treat heavily soiled areas, and allow plenty of time for the carpets to air dry completely afterwards. Don't forget to empty and rinse out the dirty water tank as needed. Return the machine - When your rental period is up, return the machine is wiped down. A rental associate will inspect the cleaner and process your deposit refund, minus any applicable cleaning or damage fees. If you need extra time, you can extend your rental for an additional fee, subject to availability. Insider Tips for Getting the Most Out of Your Rental To ensure a successful and satisfying carpet cleaning experience with your Home Depot rental, keep these expert tips in mind: Reserve in advance - Carpet cleaners are popular rental items, especially on weekends and during peak cleaning seasons. Reserving your machine ahead of time ensures that you get the model and rental period you want. Read the instructions carefully - Each carpet cleaner model is a little different, so take the time to familiarize yourself with the specific operating instructions and drying times. Do a test patch first - Before tackling your entire carpet, test the cleaning solution on a small, inconspicuous area to make sure it doesn't cause any discoloration or damage. This is especially important for delicate or exotic fibers. Use the right accessories - Most rental machines come with different attachments, such as an upholstery tool, crevice tool, or stair tool. Using the appropriate accessory for each area will help you achieve a more thorough and efficient clean. Don't overwet the carpet - While it's tempting to use a lot of solution to get rid of stubborn stains, oversaturating your carpet can lead to mold, mildew, and other moisture-related problems. Aim for a damp, not soaking wet, texture and make multiple passes if needed. Allow adequate drying time - Depending on the humidity, airflow, and carpet thickness, it can take anywhere from 2-24 hours for your carpets to dry completely after cleaning. Avoid walking on or placing furniture on the damp carpet as much as possible to prevent matting and residue. Environmental Considerations If you're concerned about the ecological impact of carpet cleaning, there are a few things you can do to make your rental experience more environmentally friendly: Choose a machine with a higher water efficiency rating to minimize waste Opt for plant-based or biodegradable cleaning solutions instead of harsh chemicals Spot clean stains and spills immediately to avoid the need for more frequent deep cleaning Use doormats and area rugs to reduce the amount of dirt tracked onto your carpets Vacuum regularly with a high-efficiency particulate air (HEPA) filter to remove allergens By taking these steps, you can keep your carpets looking and smelling fresh while also reducing your carpet cleaner rental service, you may be wondering if it makes more sense to just buy your own machine. The answer depends on your individual needs and cleaning habits. In general, renting is the more economical choice if you only need to deep clean your carpets once or twice a year. Purchasing a high-quality carpet cleaner can cost anywhere from $200 to $2,000, plus ongoing maintenance and storage costs. However, if you have a large home, a lot of carpeted areas, or pets and kids that necessitate more frequent deep cleaning, investing in your own machine may be worth it in the long run. Owning a carpet cleaner also gives you the convenience of being able to tackle stains and spills as soon as they happen. If you're on the fence, consider renting a carpet cleaner from Home Depot a few times to see how often you actually use it and what features are most important to you. This can help you determine if buying makes sense for your situation. Real-Life Rental Stories Don't just take our word for it - here are some real customer reviews and experiences with Home Depot's carpet cleaner rental service: "I rented the Rug Doctor from Home Depot to clean the carpets in my rental property between tenants. It was easy to reserve online and pick up in store.
